

Courtney Wilt is an Associate Professor of Special Education at the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater. Her research interests include the impact and implementation of special education policy, the experiences of racialized students and their families during the transition to adulthood, and (special) educator discourse on dis/ability and race. Dr. Wilt teaches courses on family and community engagement, inclusive education, and the intersections of racism and ableism in school and society. She mentors undergraduate research teams in explorations of academic ableism and educator agency/positionality within school systems.
